

Statement

My work involves a process of exploring the deconstruction of found words and images.

Fragments of appropriated newsprint images are deconstructed and then reconstructed to make erasure poems. Through this method the visual and text information is transformed into an expression of grief and loss.